About the Experience Sharing – eBusiness Objective Drives Security Implementation

We all know that business objectives drive the operations, but how do eBusiness objectives impact security? Here Mr. Thomas Parenty will talk about the live business model of a major B2B portal in the USA and demonstrate how the business objectives of different stakeholders impact their security focus. He will also explain what challenges they have in integrating the security measures in the business operations. Some of the outstanding security concerns will be highlighted for further action. What would be your recommendation to management to ensure the overall business interests are protected?

About the Speaker

Mr. Thomas Parenty is Managing Director of Parenty Consulting Ltd (Hong Kong) and President of Parenty Consulting, LLC (USA). He has over twenty years of experience in the computer security and cryptography fields, including employment with the (U.S.) National Security Agency. He has designed and evaluated the information security protection of numerous national and global systems, including those for banking, electronic commerce, healthcare, and nuclear command and control. Parenty has designed security features in enterprise applications that are currently used by governments and businesses across the globe, and he is the inventor of a patent-pending Internet encryption system.
